Do you remember how Bambino saw the duckling crying? When the frog and the dragonfly pulled faces to try to cheer him up, he still cried. Then the three friends asked what was wrong. The duckling said he was lost and he wanted his Mommy! When Bambina pulled funny faces and the duckling copied her, that cheered him up! The friends promised to help find his mommy, and the duckling was so happy he played hide and seek in Baba's fur! Away they went, over the bridge! Suddenly a flock of birds appeared with some ducks amongst them. But we still had to help sort out which babies belonged to which parents: that was hard! At last the duck family was all together again! They had been really scared!

What is that sound? Now look what we've found!
A sad little duckling that is crying.
Poor little mite, we'll help put things right.
At least, there is no harm in our trying.
